

Traffic is a big problem in many cities around the world. Traffic is especially bad during rush hour-the time when the people go to work or school and the time when they go home. Many people take buses, subways or trains to work, but many other people drive their cars. As a result, the streets are very busy, and traffic is very bad.

Many cities are trying to solve their traffic problem. Some cities are building more roads. Other cities are expanding and their bus and subway systems.

Many cities are trying to reduce the number of cars on their roads. Some highways have carpool lanes, special lanes for cars with two, three or more people. In some cities, people drive their cars only on certain days of the week. For example, in Athens, people with license plates numbers ending in 0 through 4 drive on same days, and people with numbers ending in 5 through 9 drive on other days.

Every day around the world, more and more people drive to and from work in more and more cars. As a result, traffic is a global problem.